New Endeavors by Women

Providing housing and opportunity for homeless women in Washington, DC since 1988

What is the Cell Phone Drive?

New Endeavors by Women (NEW) is collecting old and unwanted cell phones. We recycle the phones and earn urgently needed funding to sustain our five housing programs, which are home to nearly 200 women and children. Learn more about our work at www.nebw.org or call 202.682.5825.

How can you help? Donate your old phone(s) or host a group collection. Group collections are great for companies, community groups, faith organizations, youth--anyone who wants to help the homeless!

What phones are accepted? Any unwanted cell phone is accepted! Phones do not need to be in working condition. No charger or accessories are required.

Where to donate phones? Donate by mail or in person at our main office:

For large phone collection drives, we can arrange for pick up.

About New Endeavors by Women

Established in 1988, NEW is one of the District's most respected homeless service providers, providing transitional housing and permanent supportive housing to nearly 200 women and children each year. We are home to women and children escaping domestic violence, women living with HIV/AIDS, women in recovery, and families facing other challenges. Over 80% of our residents achieve financial stability and successfully sustain long-term housing.

NEW's Major Partners

We are grateful to our major funders for supporting our housing programs and services for homeless women and children.
